

Dr. Jason Stoker is a US Geological Survey Physical Scientist and is currently the Elevation Science and Applications Lead for the National Geospatial Program. Jason oversees strategic planning, development and coordination of the 3D Elevation Program and related data, tools, and services.